Workers for the Harvest

Overview

The sending out of the seventy-two is a key passage for prayer and for strategy in Disciple Making Movements. It emphasizes the need to pray for more workers, what workers are to do and not do, and the importance of identifying households of peace as part of their strategy. These disciple makers were not unique in their qualifications. They were not better educated or more capable than other followers of Jesus. What equipped them for this mission was their awareness of Jesus' power and their vision to reach all people with the good news of God's Kingdom.
